Dear Professor Schmidt:

STAT
STAT
We would be most happy to welcome you and your students from Syracuse University on May 20th from 1:30 to 2:30. I have already contacted [redacted] and, fortunately, he will again be available to brief your students on that date. As you may have gathered, [redacted] enjoys meeting with your group and will be looking forward to another stimulating exchange with the students this year.

As you may recall, we do have two rules that apply to all groups coming to our Headquarters Building; i.e., the names and social security numbers of all visitors must be submitted to this office well in advance of the visit (a minimum of two weeks) and only U.S. citizens are permitted on the grounds. We shall try to provide bus transportation for your group as we have in prior years. We can make final arrangements regarding transportation by telephone after you arrive in Washington.

With all best wishes.

Sincerely,

Coordinator for Academic Affairs

STAT

MEMORANDUM

Karl Schmidt, Director of the Washington Seminar of the Maxwell School at Syracuse, would like to bring 20-25 graduate and undergraduate students to Headquarters for a briefing on the intelligence community on 20 May. We have been hosting Schmidt and his students for many years. [redacted] would be willing to do the briefing as he has for the last two years. Please secure approval from the DDCI or whoever. Thanks.

WASHINGTON SEMINAR

MAY 9-28, 1983

With the 1984 presidential campaign one short year away, will Ronald Reagan "stay the course?"

With the 1982 election results strongly suggesting voter disenchantment with Reagan administration policies, will the 98th Congress press for change?

Key questions such as these dominate the crucial year of 1983. Seek the answers yourself on the political "turf" in Washington, D.C. Analyze the major issues confronting both president and Congress during three exciting, intensive weeks in the nation's capital. Interview the participants in the governing process: cabinet and subcabinet officers, legislative leaders of both parties, career administrators, lobbyists for powerful pressure groups, and journalists from leading national media. Get the story behind the scenes as a member of the Washington Seminar sponsored by Syracuse University's Maxwell School of Citizenship and Public Affairs.

Members of the seminar meet to discuss the congressional role in oversight of monetary policy with Congressman George Wortley (R-N.Y.), a member of the House Banking Committee.

THEMES

The Reagan Administration: "Staying the Course?"

The 98th Congress: Pressure for Change?

Assistant Secretary of Interior Joan M. Davenport discusses federal energy and minerals policy with members of the Washington Seminar.

1983 ISSUES

Economic Policy

"Reaganomics": What cost unemployment to fight inflation?

Social program cuts: What costs in human terms?

Defense Policy

Unbridled military spending: What costs in whopping budget deficits?

Foreign Policy

Cold War renewal: What cost in true national security?

Regulatory Policy

Unrestrained free enterprise: What costs in public health and safety?

Environmental Policy

Short-run exploitation: What cost for future

ELIGIBILITY AND ADMISSION

Washington Seminar courses are conducted according to the usual high standards of the Maxwell School's political science and public administration departments and are especially appropriate for students in those areas. Applications are also encouraged from students majoring in other disciplines, as well as from those enrolled at other institutions. The only requirements are that students must be in good academic standing; must submit two letters of recommendation, preferably from college instructors familiar with their work; and must submit evidence of their intellectual and physical capacity to undertake this intensive, demanding program.

Applications are due on April 8, 1983. Acceptance thereafter will depend upon available space.

ACCOMMODATIONS

Housing arrangements are made by the Washington Seminar to assure convenience of location and the opportunity for close association among participants. Charges for modern accommodations with kitchenettes are modest—about $400 for the 20-day period based on triple occupancy. Double and single occupancy housing is available at proportionately higher prices.

Payment of rent directly to the hotel is due upon arrival in Washington. A conference room charge, not expected to exceed $30, is also payable upon arrival.

Excellent food is available at government and private cafeterias for an average daily cost of $8. Subway and cab fare for travel to and from interviews, as well as other incidental costs, may be expected to average about $3 per day. These charges are the responsibility of the student, as are travel arrangements and expenses to and from Washington. It may be possible to arrange car pools for sharing driving expense.

RECENT INTERVIEWS

A partial list of the Washington officials whom seminar participants have interviewed in recent years includes:

United States Senators

Max Baucus (D-Mont.)
Nancy Landon Kassebaum (R-Kans.)
Richard G. Lugar (R-Ind.)

Cabinet and Subcabinet Officers

James B. Edwards, Secretary, Department of Energy
Richard E. Lyng, Undersecretary, Department of Agriculture

United States Congressmen

Richard L. Cheney (R-Wyo.)
Claude Pepper (D-Fla.)

Agency Heads

Anne M. Gorsuch, Administrator, Environmental Protection Agency
Nancy Harvey Steorts, Chairman, Consumer Products Safety Commission

Fiscal Experts

John D. Heller, Assistant Comptroller General of the United States
J. Charles Partee, member, Board of Governors, Federal Reserve System

Career Administrators

Alan L. Dean, Chairman, National Academy of Public Administration
Edward F. Preston, Assistant Director, Office of Management and Budget

Foreign Affairs Experts

Lincoln Gordon, Central Intelligence Agency
Joseph C. Wheeler, Deputy Administrator, Agency for International Development

Washington Journalists

John W. Finney, Washington News Editor, The New York Times
Jim Lehrer, Public Broadcasting Service (PBS)

Pressure Group Representatives

Henry B. Schechter, AFL-CIO
John Mahoney, American Medical Association

ACADEMIC CREDIT

Undergraduate (Political science, PSC 472, 3 credits) Grades are determined on the basis of: (1) the interviews conducted; (2) a series of logs that describe and analyze selected interviews; and (3) a comprehensive final examination. Course credit is transferable to other colleges and universities, subject to their regulations.

Graduate (Political science or public administration, PSC/PPA 701, 3 credits) Graduate students have the opportunity to write a paper in an area of their own interest based on their first-hand interviews and subsequent research. Performance is judged by: (1) the research paper—to be completed within a month after leaving Washington; (2) the interviews conducted; (3) the analytical logs; and (4) the final examination. The course offers regular credits in the Maxwell School's master's and doctoral programs in political science and public administration. Course credit is transferable to other graduate institutions, subject to their regulations.

Additional Credit (PSC 490/890 or PPA 890) Undergraduate and graduate students who wish to undertake an independent research project for extra credit may register for Independent Study. These courses may carry one, two, or three credits, enabling a student to take as many as six credits in the Washington Seminar.

WASHINGTON SEMINAR
APPLICATION FORM

A deposit of $50 must accompany the completed application from this brochure. The deposit is credited toward tuition (or may be refunded upon withdrawal on or before April 8, 1983). The balance of tuition is payable no later than May 2, 1983. Checks for both the deposit and tuition should be made payable to Syracuse University and submitted to the program director at the address below. Students must also complete a summer sessions registration form, which will be sent upon receipt of application, before going to Washington, D.C.

It is expected that tuition will not exceed $188 per credit for undergraduates ($564 for three credits) or $202 per credit for graduate students ($606 for three credits). The tuition amounts as stated at this time are only approximations and are subject to change. A final determination regarding summer sessions tuition will be made by February 1, 1983.

Mail the completed application, together with deposit, to Karl M. Schmidt, Director, Washington Seminar, 17 Maxwell Hall, Department of Political Science, Syracuse University, Syracuse, New York 13210. Requests for further information or additional applications should be directed to Professor Schmidt as well.

STAT

Dear [Redacted]

For several years, you have generously arranged special programs for our Washington Seminar students with officials of the CIA. The past two years, for example, we have met with [Redacted] for discussions about the role of the agency in American intelligence gathering and analysis.

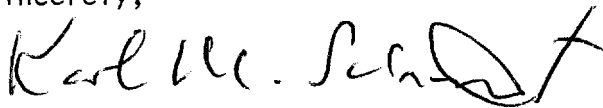

STAT

Would it be possible for you to arrange a similar program again this year? There will be some 20 to 25 graduate and undergraduate students who will be exploring defense and foreign policy as one of their main themes. In the third year of the Reagan administration, we would be particularly interested in any "mid-course corrections" in the intelligence community and its administration.

If such a session is possible, may I suggest Friday May 20th from 1:30 to 2:30 p.m.? This is only a suggestion, however, and we shall be happy to schedule another time more convenient for you. As in the past, we shall be most appreciative if you will again be able to arrange bus transportation for us to and from Langley.

Many thanks for your past help and your assistance once again this year.

Sincerely,

Karl M. Schmidt
